Petersburg, June 14.

ON Sunday laſt M. Hockholtz, the Queen of Hungary's Reſident at this Court, had an Audience of the Empreſs at Peterhoff, in which he notified to her Imperial Majeſty the Coronation of her Hungarian Majeſty as Queen of Bohemia. M. Koppin, who was formerly the Duke of Mecklenburg's Miniſter at Stockholm, arrived lately at this Court with a Commiſſion from the Duke of Mecklenburg; but her Imperial Majeſty, not thinking fit to enter into it in the preſent Situation of Affairs, has been pleaſed to diſmiſs the ſaid Gentleman with a preſent of 2000 Rubles.

ADvices lately arrived from Perſia, confirm not only the Sophi's Retreat, with his Troops out of Dagiſtan and the Parts adjacent to the Ruſſian Frontiers, to the other Side of Derbent and farther, towards Perſia, but that he was actually marching through the Stepp, or Deſart of Mungali, in the Month of March laſt. His Army was conſiderably diminiſhed by the extreme Cold and Want of Proviſions: A great Number of Horſes, Mules and Camels, died alſo on the Way, ſo that not only common Soldiers, but many Officers were forced to travel on Foot, and the Sophi was obliged to ſtay ſome Time in the Mungaliſh Deſart to put his Troops in Order again. From thence he marched in the Month of April to Tewris, with his whole Army, and propoſed to continue his March to the Turkiſh Frontiers, and make the firſt Attack upon the City of Erſerum, as he was fully determined to declare War againſt Turkey, and had already made ſuch Preparations for it, Couriers having been diſpatched into all the Provinces of the Empire, to furniſh more Troops, Horſes, Artillery, Proviſions, and other Neceſſaries, as ſoon as poſſible. On the other Hand, the Turks are making the neceſſary Preparations; their Troops are already upon the Frontiers, both on the Side of Babylon and Erſerum, and are daily reinforced.

Extract from General Keith's Relation of the firſt Operations of this Year's Campaign, and the Action between him and the Enemy's Galleys by the Iſland of Corpo, on the 19*th of May, under the Command of Vice-Admiral Falckengron.*

UPON my Arrival, the 15th of May, with the Sixteen Gallies and two Bombarding Praums under my Command, at the River Corpo, the Enemy's Fleet of Gallies, which was then by the ſame River, drew back with the greateſt Precipitation twenty Werſt into the Sea, where it was augmented with ſome Barks; but our Gallies and Praums were detained the next Day at the Mouth of the River by a contrary Wind, which blew ſo ſtrong for two Days, that our Praums could not go forward. During which Time, the Enemy might have come with a fair Wind to attack us.

On the 18th towards Evening, the Enemy came nearer to us, wherefore I placed our Praums at the Mouth of the River by a Paſs, and the Gallies immediately behind them, to wait for the Enemy, who was that Evening within three Werſt of us, but not reſolving upon any Enterprize, came to an Anchor. Whereupon I ſent a Lieutenant Colonel with Three hundred Men to guard the Paſs for our Galleys, and four Field-pieces, and afterwards four Eight Pounder Galley-pieces were planted on a Battery on the Shore.

The next Day the 19th at Sun-riſe, we ſaw the Enemy's Praum and Gallies juſt before us, but the Vice-Admiral's Galley, and the Right Wing, kept behind an Iſland juſt by. The ſame Day in the Afternoon, the Enemy's Fleet, conſiſting of twenty Gallies and one large Praum was put in order againſt the Mouth of the River Corpo, by the Iſland of that Name, to venture upon an Attack. The Enemy began and continued for three Hours a hot Fire upon us with their Cannon; againſt which our two Praums chiefly fired, there being ſo little Room, that only a few Gallies could act behind the Praums; but for that Reaſon there was the briſker Fire from the Cannon planted on the Shore, which, with the Praums and Gallies together made Fourteen hundred and ſeventy four Shot. After this three Hours Engagement, the Enemy, tho' ſuperior in Number, had not only gained no Advantage, but was forced to retire back to Sea with no ſmall Damage. The Enemy's famous great Praum, called the Hercules, ceaſed firing two Hours before the End of the Engagement, and was drawn out of the Line. It was alſo obſerved, that two Flag Officer Gallies retired twice out of the Line, probably to repair ſome Damage received; and as we ſaw that one Galley was towed by another in the Retreat, one may conclude, that the Enemy's Fleet of Gallies muſt have ſuffered no ſmall Damage and Loſs of Men; for as they were driven back they retired with ſuch Precipitation, that the third Day after the Action they could ſcarcely be diſcerned from our Light-Houſe; and as we found the Anchor of the Hercules Praum with the the Cable cut, it ſeems ſhe had not Time to get it up.

On our Side the Loſs, in this hot Engagement, was very ſmall, having not above thirty Men killed and wounded; which was partly owing to our being advantageouſly poſted in good Order by a Fort for our Defence againſt the Enemy. The good Conduct and Bravery of the Commanders of both the Praums, the Sea Lieutenants Pronziſchew and Soimonow, and their whole Equipage, which acted alſo very bravely, cannot be ſufficiently commended.

Immediately after, I purſued the Enemy farther, and am now poſted by Aland, waiting for Field Marſhal Lacy, to act with united Force.

The Field Marſhal is already arrived with his Gallies at Tweremund, not far from Anguta, where her Imperial Majeſty's Fleet of Ships, under the Command of Admiral Gallowin, joined him. From thence they are going together to Anguta and farther, to join General Keith, and we expect ſhortly other Advices of their Operations.

We have the following Account of the 24th of May from Lieutenant General Stoffel, who commands her Imperial Majeſty's Troops in Eaſt Bothnia, that the Swediſh Major General Freudenfeld, with the Swediſh Troops under his Command, had been ſix Weeks in thoſe Parts, not far from the City of Ula, and had not ventured upon the leaſt Enterprize againſt the Ruſſian Troops; but as ſoon as he heard of their marching that Way, he retired with ſo great Precipitation and Fear, that he burnt the Bridge behind him, ſunk ſome Cannon in the Water, and left on the Way many Waggons and other Things that were too heavy to carry off with Speed.

Stockholm, June 28, O. S. Yeſterday Morning died here Major General Senator Adlerfeldt, of the Wound he had received in the Affair which happened with the Dalicarlians the 22d Inſtant. Major General Stahl is ſet out for Kiel to compliment the Duke Adminiſtrator, in the Name of his Swediſh Majeſty, on his being elected Succeſſor to this Crown. The King and Senate have taken the Reſolution to ſend immediately an Ambaſſadour Extraordinary to the King of Denmark.

Hanau, July 13, N. S. Yeſterday Morning at Break of Day the French Army broke up, and marched in a very haſty Manner from the Mayn. As the Auſtrian Huſſars are not yet arrived, ſome of our Independent Companies were ſent after them, and took ſome Baggage from them, and brought in the Prince of Craon's Son Priſoner, who lay wounded in a Village which they had abandoned. Fifty ſeven Deſerters came in Yeſterday from the French Army, who ſay, that the Orders for their March were given on a Sudden, and that ſince the Battle there had been a vaſt Deſertion; that it was talk'd in the Army that they were to go to Worms, and that they were to take four Marches without ſtopping. We have certain Intelligence that they have continued marching all this Day, and they ſeem to point towards Oppenheim. By Letters of the 10th from Heidelberg, we hear that a good Body of Huſſars are in that Neighbourhood, and that the Elector Palatin has quitted his Reſidence at Manheim. We expect to hear from Prince Charles To-morrow, and reckon that he is within ſeven Marches of us this Day: Both the Armies having been Victorious, are in the higheſt Spirits. His Majeſty is in perfect Health, after a ſlight Indiſpoſition of two Days, occaſioned by the immenſe Fatigue he has gone through. The Duke of Cumberland's Fever has entirely left him, and his Royal Highneſs is out of all Manner of Danger.

The following is the Route of the Army under the Command of Prince Charles.

Firſt Column.

Hanau, July 17, N. S. We have certain Advice, that the French Army under the Command of Marſhal Broglio, paſſed the Rhine on Friday laſt at Spire, and that the Army under Marſhal Noailles were to paſs the ſame River as this Day about Oppenheim and Worms.

Vienna, July 6. We hear that the Town of Braunau has ſurrendred upon Capitulation; the Garriſon to be diſarmed, and not to ſerve for a Year and a Day; and that the Queen's Forces are likewiſe in Poſſeſſion of Reichenhall. Marſhal Broglio, when he left Donawert, threw all the Magazines into the Danube; he took with him ſeven Days Proviſions, and had got four Marches of Prince Charles from Schellenberg, but the Huſſars were up with his Rear, and it is thought certain here, that though he ſhould eſcape the grand Army, which is purſuing him, he cannot carry 15000 Men back into France.

Copenhagen, July 13, N. S. The Fleet lies ſtill in the Road, without any Orders to ſail.

Liege, July 16, N. S. This Day Brigadier General Howard, at the Head of three Engliſh Regiments, Regiments, and that of the Scotch Highlanders commanded by Lord Sempil, with about 250 Waggons loaden with the Clothing and Stores for the Britiſh Army, arrived at Tongres, where they will halt To-morrow, and paſs the Maeſe the next Day at Maeſtricht in their Way to the Army. A Dutch Officer arrived here Yeſterday from General Colleyar, Governor of Namur, in order to ſettle with our Government all that may be neceſſary for the March of two Dutch Regiments through this Principality from Namur to Arnheim, one of which will begin to march on the 18th Inſtant, and the other the Day following.

Hague, July 19, N. S. The 3d of next Month, N. S. is fixed by the Council of State, for the Firſt Diviſions of Horſe and Foot to paſs the Frontier of the Republick, and enter into Weſtphalia, in order to join the Allied Army in Germany under the Command of the King of Great Britain.
